NGO working for animal welfare interacts with TSVS eco-warriors

DB Post Correspondent

Bhopal: Eco-warriors of The Sanskaar Valley School interacted with members of Kartavya, an NGO that works against animal abuse and cruelty, at a workshop that marked World Animal Day.

The members of the NGO are united by a passion and conviction to be the voice of homeless 'strays', to champion their cause and to bring about a positive change in their lives. Riddhi Paliwal, Akash Saxena and Ankita Sharma, all final year CA students, were present on the occasion as representatives of Kartavya. The eco-warriors of TSVS had an interactive session with the NGO members and shared their own stories of how they helped animals. The session left a deep impact on students, and all vowed to take more care of street animals.

Riddhi Paliwal said, "Protecting street animals is a challenge, but saving even one may impact more lives than we think."
